Statement of LIFE Coalition for Business & Biodiversity

We, the signatory companies of the LIFE Coalition for Business and Biodiversity, recognize that biodiversity is essential to business resilience, societal well-being, and the long-term stability of our planet.

In the face of accelerated species loss, habitat degradation, and the growing risks associated with climate change, we consider biodiversity a strategic business priority and are committed to embedding it into our governance, decision-making, and operations. We are dedicated to measuring, mitigating, and reducing our impacts on biodiversity, minimizing risks arising from nature loss, and advancing a positive biodiversity agenda through investments in tangible, measurable conservation actions.

Through the engagement of senior leadership and in alignment with global goals, particularly Target 15 of the Kunming-Montreal Global Biodiversity Framework, we strive to deliver positive biodiversity outcomes. To support this effort, we collectively adopt the LIFE biodiversity metrics, enabling a standardized and transparent approach to tracking progress across this agenda.

We promote and share innovative practices that prevent and reduce negative impacts, enhance positive contributions, and strengthen nature conservation efforts. We recognize the vital role of private-sector investment in generating lasting socioenvironmental benefits.

Our goal is to translate global commitments into measurable business practices that help safeguard ecosystem services and support informed biodiversity-related decision-making.

We communicate our commitments, impacts, dependencies, and contributions to nature in a clear and transparent manner, disclosing relevant metrics and information to investors and other stakeholders.

We believe that championing biodiversity is a strategic opportunity to redefine corporate responsibility. As a Coalition, we seek to catalyze greater business engagement in the conservation of biodiversity and ecosystem services, promoting their effective management as a foundation for long-term sustainability, resilience, and competitiveness.

We also encourage all companies to measure and demonstrate their contributions to biodiversity and, whenever possible, pursue the certification of their operations.

We believe that joining a business coalition dedicated to biodiversity is a meaningful step toward addressing today's environmental challenges. By working together, we amplify our positive impact, share knowledge and resources, accelerate the transition to more sustainable business models, and play a leading role in building a more equitable, balanced, and nature-positive future.
